Uganda Wildlife Research and Training Institute Bill

2013

THE UGANDA WILDLIFE RESEARCH AND TRAINING INSTITUTE BILL, 2013

MEMORANDUM

1. Policy and principles

The policy behind this Bill is to establish the Uganda Wildlife Research and Training Institute to replace the current Uganda Wildlife Training Institute.

The Bill seeks—

- (a) to re-orient the current Uganda Wildlife Training Institute into a modern institution based on specialized and well focused professional capacity to undertake research to ensure effective development of the wildlife sector human resource;
- (b) to avail reliable and adequate data on the complex issues associated with crop and livestock raiding, the threat to human life, encroachment, poaching and disease transmission;
- (c) to base wildlife sector program development process on well informed and effectively guided options for improvement of peoples' livelihoods and growth and development of the national economy;

- (d) to guide the exploitation of Uganda's wildlife resource potential to ensure value addition and job creation for improvement of people's livelihoods, growth and the development of the national economy;
- (e) to effectively and sustainably contribute to the wildlife sector for the growth and development of the national economy and social transformation;
- (f) to fill the gaps in the research programme planning and priority setting for the wildlife sector resulting from the dissolution of the former Uganda Institute of Ecology; and
- (g) to return through a legal framework, the Uganda Wildlife Training Institute from the Ministry of Education and Sports to the Ministry of Tourism, Trade and Industry.

2. Defects in the existing law

The repeal of the Uganda Wildlife Training Institute Act Cap 139 by the Universities and Other Tertiary Institutions Act, 2001, transferred the Institute to the Ministry of Education and Sports from the Ministry of Tourism, Trade and Industry.

However, the return of the Institute from the Ministry of Education and Sports to the Ministry of Tourism, Trade and Industry in 2008 was done without a legal framework as this requires a law for its operation.

3. Remedies proposed to deal with defects in the existing law

There is an urgent need for a legal framework to broaden the mandate of the Uganda Wildlife Training Institute to include research, consultancy and training for the effective development of the wildlife resources.

4. Necessity for introduction of the Bill

The Bill is therefore being introduced to give a legal status of the Institute and to provide an adequate law to regulate its existence and operation.
